Weekend Edition: 12 Things to Do in New York's Art World Before February 15

By Paul Laster

Opening: "Low" at Lyles & King

Organized by artists Michael DeLucia and Ethan Greenbaum, "Low" presents a group show of 11 artists who imaginatively visualize architectural settings and sculptural forms in two-dimensional ways. John Divola photographs wrecked apartments in abandoned housing developments; Brie Ruais flattens out the corner of a room with a bulky ceramic sculpture; and Michael Henry Hayden makes details of rooms—complete with light fixtures, door locks, and mood lighting—that look more like photographs than painted replicas of the real thing.

Lyles & King, 106 Forsyth Street, New York, 5-8 p.m.
