6 Shanghai Art Exhibitions to Check Out This Weekend

That's Shanghai takes a look at the best art exhibits on this weekend:

Asymmetric Archaeology : Gazing Machines: Quayola Solo Exhibition

This large scale solo exhibition at HOW is the first in China for Italian artist Quayola. Ranging from digital print and video to digital sculpture and robotic installation, Quayola appeals to traditional styles and machines for fabrication, forging a timeline that reconciles and embraces the conflicts of the two very different eras. In a tech-forward, vaporwavey artificial landscape, you can explore this recontextualization of traditional art history.

Until Jun 2, HOW Art Museum.
