Curated by Lindsay Howard (who we profiled in February), this Lower East Side gallery will mount an impressive list of digitally-based artists for a show that looks at the addictive qualities of the Internet and whether these common practices are actually gratifying in the long run. Some of the the artists involved include Addie Wagenknecht, Jonas Lund, Ry David Bradley, Hannah Perry, Petra Cortright and more. But be careful: buying art from hot, young artists can also as addictive as Facebook. bitforms, 131 Allen Street, New York, 6-9 p.m.
