

Critical digital culture and media arts · Since 1993

SUBSCRIBE TO NEURAL

NEW MEDIA ART SOCIAL MEDIA

CURRENT ISSUE

BACK ISSUES

FIND NEURAL IN STORES

My opsec haul from Sephora, politics within makeup videos

The space for politics has shrunk, either 'deported' to social media and online spaces in general, self-ghettoized in homogeneous circles or lost in the crowd of leaders' profiles, not to mention the pollution of human and bot paid troll armies. "my opsec haul from Sephora" is a series that Addie Wagenknecht performed on a barebone YouTube channel. In her "Dry shampoo review Herbal Essence and blocking Chad from calling", or "how to use bittorrent without a boyfriend and apply fake lashes", she shows how to use specific beauty products while instructing about critical technologies. Her parasitic stance cleverly infiltrates political messages into an ultra-pop environment. Who knows if Feroza Aziz was inspired by them before posting on Tik Tok, months later, her viral eyelash curling tutorial while condemning China.

Addie Wagenknecht – Dry shampoo review Herbal Essence and blocking Chad from calling

AURELIO CIANCIOTTA

1 APR 2020